Dear Harold,

Before we leave this too late, Sharon and I thank you deeply for your time and hospitality on May 7. With luck we'll have another interview, just as absorbing snd rewarding as this one was for me.

MY friend Mr. Feinstein hasn't passed me his copy of Cloak and Gown by Robin Winks, as he said he might. I think he doesn't want to part with it. He's an unredeemed spy buff....So, I have ordered my own copy of Cloak and Gown and will loan it to you as you asked. It will be a loan because I'll be sending it to you before I read it myself.

When we talked, I forgot a somewhat crucial question. In the course of your investigations for your books, was your life ever threatened?

Anywhow...I have an enormity of work in store for myself despite nagging illness. Our best regards to you and Lillian.

Sincerely,

Bill Ryan
